

Table of Contents

Vorwort der Herausgeber	XIII
Preface and Acknowledgements of the Author	XV
1 Introduction	1
1.1 Prologue	1
1.2 Cultural Background	1
1.3 Research Area	1
1.4 Research Period	2
1.5 Previous Research on Domestic Ceramics of the Meroe Region	5
1.6 Research Objectives	6
2 Materials and Methods	7
2.1 Material Basis from Recent Excavations	7
2.1.1 Hamadab	7
2.1.2 Meroe Royal Baths	9
2.2 Scope of the Study	11
2.3 The Examined Ceramic Corpus	11
2.4 The Recording System	12
2.4.1 Recovery Strategy and Principles of Sampling	12
2.4.2 Classifications	13
2.5 The General Character of the Hamadab Assemblage	21

3	The Chaîne Opératoire in Kushite Ceramic Manufacture	23
3.1	Raw Material Procurement in the Meroe Region	23
3.2	Clay Preparation	23
3.2.1	Tempering	24
3.3	Shaping	27
3.3.1	Handmade	27
3.3.2	Wheelmade	28
3.4	Finishing	30
3.4.1	Surface Treatment	30
3.4.2	Decoration	31
3.5	Drying and Firing	34
3.5.1	Drying	34
3.5.2	Firing	34
4	Fabric Classification – Outline of the Scheme	37
4.1	Previous Research	37
4.2	Research Questions	38
4.3	Sample Set	38
4.4	Analytical Approach	39
4.4.1	Refiring Tests (MGR Analysis)	39
4.4.2	Chemical Characterisation (WD-XRF)	40
4.4.3	Thin-Section Petrography	41
4.4.4	Macroscopic Characterisation of Fabric Samples	41
4.4.5	Functional Properties Analysis	43
4.5	Results of Archaeometric Analyses	44
4.5.1	Composition of the Local Sample Set	45
4.5.2	Inter-Site Comparison	46
4.5.3	Methodical Considerations	46

5 Fabric Evaluation – Application of the Scheme	49
5.1 Macroscopic Fabric Examination	49
5.2 Nile Clay	50
5.2.1 Material Consistency	50
5.2.2 The Use of Nile Clay in the Studied Assemblage	51
5.3 Wadi Clays	54
5.3.1 Recognition and Previous Research	55
5.3.2 Exploitation	55
5.3.3 Functional Characteristics	56
5.3.4 Production	56
5.3.5 Wadi Clay Subgroups	58
5.4 A Note on Mixed Clays	64
5.5 Kaolinitic Clays	66
5.5.1 Raw Material Procurement	67
5.5.2 Provenance Studies	67
5.5.3 Origin and Chronology of Kaolin Fine Wares	68
5.5.4 Range of Kaolin Products	70
5.5.5 Meroitic Fine Ware Production	71
5.6 Marl Clays	76
5.6.1 Napatan Period Imports	77
5.6.2 Meroitic Period Imports	77
5.7 Non-Local Clays for Specific Ceramic Types	78
5.7.1 Quartz-Tempered Handmade Wares (Fabric Group O)	78
5.7.2 Mat-Impressed Cooking Wares (Fabric Group R)	79
5.7.3 Islamic Smoking Pipes (Fabric Group X)	80
5.8 Conclusions on Raw Material Use in Kushite Times	81
5.8.1 Selection and Use of Resources	81
5.8.2 Fabric Fingerprints of Hamadab and the Meroe Royal Baths	82
5.8.3 Chronological Changes in Clay Selection	83

6 The Kiln Pottery – Urban Ceramic Production	87
6.1 Contextual Information and Recording Strategies	87
6.1.1 Kiln Excavation	89
6.1.2 Dating Evidence for the Kiln	91
6.1.3 Recording Strategies	92
6.2 Kiln Yard Assemblage	92
6.2.1 A Note on Possible Contaminations	92
6.2.2 Composition of Kiln Yard Ceramics	93
6.3 Analysis of the Kiln Load	93
6.3.1 Wares	94
6.3.2 Fabrics	95
6.3.3 Finish	97
6.3.4 Firing	97
6.3.5 Shapes	101
6.4 Interpretation of an Urban Craft Production	108
6.4.1 Hamadab’s Local Ceramic Industry	108
6.4.2 Character of the Production System	112
6.4.3 Thoughts on the Meroitic Ceramic Industry	115
7 Domestic Ceramics from a Late Meroitic House	117
7.1 Research Questions	117
7.2 Contextual Information on House H 1600	117
7.2.1 Chronology	117
7.2.2 Household Organisation	122
7.3 Household Inventory	123
7.3.1 Sample Size and Data Discussion	123
7.3.2 Ceramic Composition of the Domestic Assemblage	124

7.4 Functional Ceramic Types for Domestic Practices in Meroitic Times	125
7.4.1 Storage and Transport Vessels	127
7.4.2 Utilitarian Vessels for Food Preparation	134
7.4.3 Cooking Equipment	136
7.4.4 Table Vessels	145
7.4.5 Ceramic Utensils for Other Uses	153
7.4.6 Conclusion – Ceramic Use in Meroitic Domestic Life	154
7.5 Reconstructing Household Activity Patterns	157
7.5.1 Comparing Household Inventories in a Neighbourhood	157
7.5.2 Household Size and Composition	158
7.5.3 Functional Distribution across Room Categories	161
7.5.4 Case Study – A Household and Its Room Assemblages	166
7.5.5 Summary – The Use of Space inside a Meroitic Home	171
8 Conclusions	173
8.1 Consumer Market – Patterns of Ceramic Production and Consumption	173
8.2 Craftsmen, Priests or Unfree Subjects? – The Question of Identity	175
8.3 Upper-, Middle- or Lower-Class Folk? – The Question of Status	176
8.4 Hamadab’s Place in the Regional Context of the Middle Nile Valley	178
8.4.1 The Meroitic Heartland	178
8.4.2 Wider Surroundings	180
8.4.3 Nubia	181
8.4.4 Summary	181
9 Appendices	183
9.1 Appendix A – Fabric Sample Catalogue	183
9.2 Appendix B – Register of Illustrated Ceramics	237

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Abbreviations and Arabic Terms	311
List of Abbreviations	311
Arabic Terms	311
Bibliography	313
Sources of Illustrations	329
Plates 1–70
Photo Plates 1–4

