

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This book, in large part the publication of my MA thesis, would not have been possible without the generous help and support of numerous individuals and institutions. I would like to especially thank Prof. Dr. Kai Kappel and Prof. Dr. Gerhard Wolf, the supervisors of my thesis, for their invaluable guidance, suggestions and encouragement, and their continued support as I worked on my PhD. It was an honor and pleasure to be guided by these esteemed scholars. I must express my gratitude to Baron and Baroness Stromer von Reichenbach-Baumbauer for their generosity and hospitality in providing access to the estate of Johann Adam Rennebaum. The thrill and the joy to study and handle these original documents – both for my MA and my PhD – remain an unforgettable experience. I would also like to thank Ms. Eva Stahlmann, who has lent me her collection of family photos and documents, invaluable records of Rennebaum's life and the German community in Egypt at large. Thanks to Edouard and Eveline Lambelet, as well as Mr. Vahe Varjabedian, whose collection of photographs provided the first real corpus of visual material related to the lost building. Mr. Dipl.-Ing. Henry Ripke deserves my thanks for his expertise on matters related to construction and engineering. To Prof. Dr. Carol Krinsky and Prof. Dr. Karen Lang,

I owe a special debt for their generous proofreading and editing of the original thesis. I would like to express my deep gratitude to Dr. Daniel Polz and Isolde Lehnert of the German Archaeological Institute in Cairo. It was their recommendation that the thesis be published in the Menschen – Reisen – Forschungen series; through their efforts and support, this book project became a reality.

I would also like to thank the following individuals and institutions, without whose help I would have never made this wonderful and remarkable discovery: Steven Ahn, Ahmad Al-Bindari, the American University in Cairo, Prof. Dipl.-Ing. Inken Baller, Sabine Bauder, Dr. Ralph Bodenstern, Prof. Dr. Horst Bredekamp, Dr. Vittoria Capresi, the Deutsches Archäologisches Institut in Cairo, Margarita Diaz, Leif Dieckmann, Dr. Dipl.-Ing. Galila El-Kadi, Dr. Nader Habib, Prof. Dr. Soheir Hawas, Dr. Max Huber, Andrew Humphreys, Yasmin Ibrahim, the Institut für Kunst- und Bildgeschichte of the Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin, Dr. James Lay, Neil MacGregor, Dr. George Marquis, Dr. Katarzyna Murawska-Muthesius, Prof. Dr. Stefan Muthesius, Prof. Dr. Hermann Parzinger, Per Schulz, Ola Seif, Eva Stahlmann, Stephen Urgola, Prof. Dr. Mercedes Volait and Dr. Nicholas Warner.
